recently wrote to illustrate the epoch in which he began life. "The Crown of Great Britain descended from King George the Fourth to King William the Fourth, that reign passed away and I have lived to see the long reign of Victoria come and go; the reign of King Edward came and we the accession of King George the Fifth, Charles the Fifth ruled in France, Francis the First in Austria, Frederick William the Third in Prussia, Nicholas the First in Russia, while less the Twelfth governed the pagan states, the Kingdom of Italy not yet having come into existence. The United Kingdoms of Great Britain and Ireland had not yet a population of 24,000,000 all told. No man who had not served his country in some capacity in the Revolutionary War had been elevated to the Presidency of the United States and this was the case until 1843."

"Times and events in his own country were no less stirring and his part in them was a marked one. Kentucky was a slave state at his birth, the Confederacy, which was to hatch into a great civil war was in the process of incubation, in fact the Colonies moved to Illinois to be in a free state and Chicago then was a small village. The older Colton was then a friend of Lincoln's, recommending the struggling backwoods lawyer to prospective clients. Young Colton's first reelection of the future war President was under such circumstances. Recalling together the rudiments of an education gained by toiling over rough primæval ponds he became successively a student at Mount Morris Academy, a country school teacher and a law clerk admitted to the bar at Springfield in 1837."

When he became City Attorney of Springfield he launched upon a political career, which for a record of unbroken service is unchallenged as exceeding that of any other American. Among his first political experiences was the novelty of being elected and defeated at the same election. He was elected to the Legislature and defeated as an legislator on the Illinois ticket. Then came the horrors! Ignorance and Douglas debates and Colton's intimate association with Lincoln, whom cleansing, too—Advertisement.

Prospectors are numerous and several large land trades are reported for the week thus far with a number more pending.

He followed into the ranks of the Republican party. He presided over the session of the Illinois House at which when Fort Sumter had been fired upon Stephen A. Douglas appeared and made his dramatic plea for the preservation of the Union. During the term of President Lincoln's second term Mr. Colton came to the National House of Representatives and began a work which was practically interrupted only when he served two terms as governor of Illinois. Colton was assassinated soon after Colton entered Washington life and the young legislator was a member of the committee that demanded the return of the President's body to Springfield. Then when the country began to recover from what seemed a final blow and the reconstruction set in with the Thirty-ninth Congress, Colton began his service with the Illinois delegation, and with such colleagues in Congress as Leman, Wentworth, Blaine, Conkling and Hayes and Garfield, both of whom attained the presidency.

After six years in the House during which he had seen the impeachment of Andrew Johnson and taken part in the making of a most critical period of American history, he returned to Illinois vowing never again to take office, only to become speaker of the legislature and later governor. At the Constitutional convention he placed himself in nomination for his second term in opposition to Mr. Lincoln, who was elected. This famous talk is made from the soul of greatest and bonniest, combined with wit, and has been used for generations in flesh and stimulate sluggish kidneys also to neutralize the acids in urine, so as longer irritates, thus ending plain weakness.

Colton's career as a United States Senator began in 1853 when he resigned as governor and was elected to succeed David Davis. His service in the Senate chamber was unbroken for thirty years—five consecutive terms—a record unequalled only by two other men, Senator Atkinson of Iowa, and Senator Morrill of Vermont.

He entered the Senate in 1853, a sprightly man of fifty-four, he left it in 1869 a fading, tottering man of eighty-four but with a brain still bright and active. He used to tell a story of how one day seeing Senator Vest, very old, feeble looking and dejected, he said to Senator Morrill, who then was senator:

"On your way down Vest up a bit whereat Morrill walked over and saying Vest on the shoulder said, 'There is an old man, why you're nothing but a dog.'

Down through the administrations of Cleveland, Harrison, McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft, he had important chairmanships which his party was in power. Finally that of the Foreign Relations Committee, generally considered the most important of the lot. He had been chairman of the commission which devised a form of government for the Hawaiian Islands after their annexation and had been chairman of the committee which first reported a bill for the creation of the Interstate Commerce Commission. His work as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee since the Spanish War is comparatively fresh in the public mind. He was an ardent supporter of the peace treaty proposed by President Taft and which was recommended by the Senate that they never were ratified.

During the last few years his friends had seen him slowly fading away in body and he became so feeble that his voice in the Senate chamber was not heard farther than the clerks desk. His term ended March 3, 1885, and he was appointed chairman of the Lincoln Memorial Commission created by Congress to superintend the erection of the $2,000,000 memorial in this city. The one wish expressed on his death bed was that he might live to see the completion of the national memorial to his old friend. His memory of fifty years of public service faded only a few months before his final illness overtook him, concluded after this manner:

"I have no great fear of death, except the natural dread of the physical pain which usually accompanies it. I certainly wish beyond any words I have power to express that I could have greater assurance that there will be a reuniting with those we love and those who have loved us in some future world, but from my reading of the scripture and even admitting that there is a hereafter, I cannot find any satisfactory evidence to warrant such a belief. Could I believe that I could meet the loved ones who have gone before, I do not know, but that I should look forward with pleasure to the passing across. Not having this belief, I am quite content to stay where I am as long as I can, and finally, when old Charon appears to me over the river Styx I shall be ready to go."

In gathering data for the purpose of initiating a composite Dartmouth man from the physical point of view, Dr. John W. Bowler, director of the Dartmouth gymnasium, has discovered that the most noticeable defect among the men examined is that of having one shoulder lower than the other. Ninety per cent of the students examined were found to have this physical defect.

At Vassar, former seven-mile walking champion, and member of the Stockholm Olympic team, has announced his retirement from competitive athletics. Vassar was one of the finest fellows in amateur sports, but says he has no time to train now by his retirement the game loses an athlete who by his sportsmanship and gameness has set a standard that all American athletes may proudly follow.

Claude Hendrix, Pirate pitcher, must be thinking of settling himself up as the record holder of the baseball world. He has been "up" three years, but is already a three-time bulldog. Clarke went after his contract a while ago but now declares Harvey Breitner will have to sign the young man himself if he wants him. Not satisfied with hanging out on the Pirates for the second successive year, Hendrix is also playing fast and loose with the Fedoras.

If Bill Fitzsimmons really wants to fight again, it would not be a bad idea to try his luck in France, where, from all appearances, that sort of thing is easier than it is in this country. Or, he might give England the double D. Fitz was a subject of the King many years ago and is probably still single.

Parke Davis has discovered another Brinkley right in our own back yard. According to his statistics, Doctor of McKeesport School, kicked the longest goal of the season last fall, when he dropped the ball over from the 45-yard line. He made four field goals in one game, one less than Brinkley's record, and hardly missed a fifth from the 50-yard line. The boy up in New Haven might be unique in a further investigation of the youngster.

The date of the Murphy-Benzie bout has now been set for April 2. "Hagen Tunny" is going to get the champion in the ring if it takes all summer, and no doubt it will at the current rate of postponements.

Pleasant Hill, N. C.—"I suffered for three summers," writes Mrs. Walter Vincent, of this town, "and the third and last time, was my worst."

I had dreadful nervous headaches and prostration, and was scarcely able to walk about. Could not do any of my housework.

I also had dreadful pains in my back and sides and when one of those weak, sinking spells would come on me, I would have to give up and lie down, until it wore off.

I was certainly in a dreadful state of health, when I finally decided to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I firmly believe I would have died if I hadn't taken it.

After I began taking Cardui, I was greatly helped, and all three bottles relieved me entirely.

RAILROAD NOTES

The Superintendent officials made no new valuations were held on railroads in Connecticut, Rhode Island,

Delaware or Alaska during 1913.

Business men at Alton, Ill., have decided to make an active fight for the proposed extension of the Missouri Pacific Railroad from Blandford, Mo., to Buffalo Gap. They will have the assistance of farmers and residents of smaller towns in their favor.

Inquiries about the rumor of impending action to refund the Northern Pacific Great Northern joint bonds issued in payment for Chicago, Burlington and Quincy stock brought forth a claim of knowledge of any existing or proposed plan for handling the matter. It was pointed out that the bond will mature on July 1, 1914, and that consequently there is plenty of time to begin plans for their reduction.

The Grand Trunk Pacific has five boats on the Pacific coastal route, and all are doing well. There will be a great future for the coastal trade. It is anticipated when the Grand Trunk Pacific is actually running on schedule time, as there will be a continuous interchange of products.

The Blue Line and the Canadian Pacific have established, effective February 1, substantial reductions in rates on railroad traffic in certain points in Western Canada, namely, Trois Rivières from Montreal, Pas and Minnedosa, Manitoba. These are basic points for making connections to Western Canadian points. As an illustration, the freight rate from basic points shown to Winkler and St. Boniface, Man., is 20 cents per 100 pounds, while the new rate will be 17 cents. To Portage la Prairie, Manitoba, passenger rate 22 cents will be 17 1/2 cents. To Brandon, Manitoba, present rate 45 cents will be 35 cents. To Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, present rate 35 cents will be 32 1/2 cents. To Valparaiso, Alta., present rate, 84 cents, will be 43 cents.

Rates have been completed by the Lackawanna Railroad Company for the expenditure of $14,000 for eight medium engines of the Pacific type, four of which will be used for the fast freight service and four for the passenger service. The four freight engines will each weigh 28,000 pounds and cost, when secured to the incisions with silk thread and put the fowl in a soap alcove. After twenty-four hours I fed her lightly for five days, then I put her with the flock, and today she bids fair to become a pearly member of my chicken family."

At first was besting pretty fast by this time, but the operation was on and I was bound to think. I bathed the wound with a solution of carbolic acid and water, then sewed up the incision with silk thread and put the fowl in a soap alcove alone. After twenty-four hours I fed her lightly for five days, then I put her with the flock, and today she bids fair to become a pearly member of my chicken family."

MUTTON NOT SO POPULAR AS BEEF.

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside, J. Pilkington Hays, the well-known market expert, writes a short article entitled "Vagaries of the Market." He writes he considers that, in the present condition of the sheep trade, a lamb price may be looked for as soon as the 15 mark is reached for lamb and 18 for sheep. He says that the almost irresistible temptation to realize profits causes many to send stuff to market before it is really fat, and price, as a matter of fact, drop. Another interesting cause is found in the fact that as soon as mutton and lamb exceed of even equal price and beef in price, the public are sure to fall back to their antique preference for the latter. He thinks that the taste for lamb and mutton is rapidly growing and that in time the public will no doubt distinctly favor beef as it now does.

WOMEN GOLFERS TO MEET.

"NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Final arrangements for the annual meeting of the Women's National Golf Association in this city tomorrow have been made. The meeting will elect officers for the year and select a place for holding the annual championship tournament of the association. The tournament will probably go to the Shinnecox Country Club.
